When the rig tipped over a couple of newspaper men, Driver Matt Morrissey and an assistant were its only occupants. The moment the accident happened the four horses began kicking furiously and started running round in a circle. The two newspaper men managed to scramble out of the wagon, but narrowly escaped the furious horses as they came dashing around where they lay sprawled out in the dusty road. The case of the driver was the most serious, and it was only pure grit on his part that stopped the horses before it became a serious accident. The wagon was smashed to pieces and had to be replaced.

The reception given the visitors at Bingham was one that will long be remembered. The mining town was decorated from one end to the other with the national colors, while from the top of every building waved the Stars and Stripes. People clustered at their doors and joined with the children in the street in extending a cordial welcome to the visitors. And the joily Angels never failed to reciprocate. They were always there with the loud return cheer, the cheerful smile and good-bye wave of the hand or handkerchief.

May Meet Again at Portland Fair

Proposition Suggested by Dr. Lamb, Personal Representative of Mayor McAleer.

Utah and Los Angeles may meet again at the Lewis and Clark exposition. This proposition was suggested yesterday by Dr. W. A. Lamb, president of the Lamb Fruit company and personal representative of Mayor Owen McAleer of Los Angeles, who is heartly in favor of it.

Discussing the matter, he said: "I would suggest, in view of the cordial and friendly relationship which has come to exist between Los Angeles and Sait Lake, that an effort be made to hold a reunion at Fortland this summer. Southern Callfornia has been invited by the exposition management to select a day at the fair, and I favor making an effort to have that day as near as possible to Utah day. This would give us an opportunity to get to gether again and renew our brief but very cordial acquaintanceship."

President Summerland of the Los Angeles City Council turned in the aliarm at the correr of Third South and Main streets, haif a mile from headquarters station. In two minutes and forty-three seconds the last piece of apparatus had passed the box, the firemeners in place and everything was ready to begin fighting flames.

A big rowd watched this Los Angeles visitions and Sait Lake people thronged the side walks, lining the curb for two blocks. The thing had become known among a few, and others gathered to see what gas going to happen. They had not long to wait. The clatter of goings and beat of thorses hoofs gounded upon First South. A pair of yellow lights swept around the corner. Others followed hard after. The clang of bells and pounding of from-shied hoofs grew louder. The noise swelled, and the apparatus swept past. Like all fire department runs, it was well werth the watching, and every one stood on his toes as trucks and engines flew past.

"That's going some," said a white-badged visitor, and the aentiment found ready echo. Then one by one the wagona and engines come back, and, coming, were leadly cheered.

TALK ABOUT A CLOSER UNION

Angels Discuss Practical Subject.

Tell Tribune Readers How To Protect Trade Relations.

Joint Chamber of Commerce One of the Ways Suggested by

That a closer union of the citizens of Los Angeles and Salt Lake will come as the inevitable result of the opening of the new railroad and the interchange of visits between the people of the two ities, follows as a matter of course. How best to secure this much-to-be-desired end was discussed last night for The Tribune by Maj J. O. Koepfit, president of the Los Angeles Chamber of Com-merce, a body that, in its far-reaching and powerful influences for good, is a bright and shining example among simi-lar organizations of the United States.

Develop Iron Deposits.

"There are many things that I might talk of," said Maj, Koepfil, "when you ask me what would be the best means of furthering the commercial interests of Los Angeles, Sait Lake and the intermediary region. I believe that, most important of all, is the development of the iron deposits of your State. They are certainly immense and of unusually fine quality. It seems to me that the opening up of these iron mines will promote an Oriental trade that will go a long way toward making San Pedro a great harbor. Utah has iron enough to supply the world for many ages. If we could get proper freight rates there should be no difficulty in sending a heavy tonnage out of the San Pedro harbor—a tonnage that would represent not only much to us, but even more to you—a city that has the immense mineral resources near at hand.

Wonderfully Rich Ccuntry. Develop Iron Deposits.

Wonderfully Rich Country.

"As to the country tributary to the Salt Lake Route. I am not very well informed. I understand, of course, that there is a great region that seems to contain much mineral wealth. The reports from the lately prospected regions indicate that neither Los Angeles nor Salt Lake has as yet realized the richness of this country.

Joint Chamber of Commerce. "You have asked me if it would be a good plan to organize or develop a joint chamber of commerce for the cities of Los Angeles and Salt Lake. I hardly know what to say, but I am inclined to believe that the day is a little early for an organization of this sort. It is true that the cities are, in a way, competitors, although friends and neighbors. There will never be any bitterness, I am sure, between us, and a healthy rivalry can be productive of nothing but good.

Los Angeles Summer Resort

Los Angeles Summer Resort. 'You cannot get many people away from Los Angeles, even for the summer. We have a night breeze there that makes slumber under a blanket a pleasure, and while your mountains are very fine in this regard, Los Angeles has so nearly a perfect climate that not even your wonderful lake will be able to draw many from our city to yours for the purpose of spending the summer. Certainly, we would be glad to have all of your citizens, that is, as many of them as can get away, come down to our town to spend the winter, but so far as I can see, you have a climate here that one has no need have a climate here that one has no need to run away from Salt Lake Famous.

"Salt Lake is bound to become a place of world-wide fame as a summer, pleasure and health resort. Persons will come here from all over the world to take advantages of your exceptional attractions in bathing in the lake or some of the hot springs, or camping in the mountains that surround the Salt Lake valley.

"As I see the problem, after two of the pleasantest days of my life, spent in your city and being your honored guests, the city and being your honored guests, the only thing necessary is for everybody in Salt Lake to treat each other like you have treated us and pull together for the welfare of your city. That it will soon become truly great I do not for a moment doubt."

Indorsed by Others.

With Maj. Koepfil at the time he discussed these questions for The Tribune, were A. B. Goes, J. W. Skinner, J. Berrich, M. H. Newmark, Willis B. Booth, Oscar C. Mueller and H. B. Gurley, acting secretary, all of whom are directors in the organization of which Maj. Koepfil the head, and all of whom said emphatically that any time and all the time they were anxlous to do all in their power. phatically that any time all in their potters were anxious to do all in their potters of to promote the mutual interests of the sister cities, and expressed the belief that within a short time we would call our-selves neighbors of the closest kind.

Dr. Lamb's View. Dr. W. G. Lamb, Park Commissioner of Los Angoles, member of the Mayor's Cabinet, and the representative of the Mayor on this visit, said last night that the furthering of trade relations between Sait Lake and Los Angeles was a matter that had already been seriously considered in the coast city. It had already been suggested that the two cities send representatives to a convention to be scienced in the coast city. It had already been suggested that the two cities send representatives to a convention to be held in Portland this summer, where the subject of trade relations could be discussed with mutual interest, and the matter might take on a broader and more comprehensive scope by the discussions that would ensue. The convention could form the nucleus for a joint board of trade, or such other form of mutual endeavor as might be agreed upon. Not only trade relations, but social intercourse and health conditions should be promoted. You have here in Salt Lake a summer climate that I deem is unsurpassed, while Los Angeles is indeed the winter resort par excellence. The exchange of views on health conditions, I have no doubt, will result in mutual advantage. Personally, and speaking also on behalf of the Mayor, whom I represent I favor the closest relations between the two cities all along the line."

Should Work Together. Maj. K. M. G. Jones, president of first Chamber of Commerce in Los Angeles, one of its founders, and County Treasurer, said. "I think that your Commercial club would do well to formulate some plans slong the lines of co-operation with our Chamber of Commerce. They could sub-mit it to us. And I know you would find yeady assent.

mit to us. And I know you would find ready assent.

"Both cities ought to work together in this way—probably along some plan whereby the two Chambers of Commerce. In matters of mutual interest, would act as one. We are competitors in a way, but we are like business men who belong to one chamber of commerce—we have points for which we want to strive.

"By doing this along definite lines—not working at cross-purposes—we can do great things for ourselves and one another. We can help the country between.

What Col. Osborne Says.

Col. Osborne, one of the members of the original Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce: "Many Los Angeles people will come here, not only on their way east but for other purposes—business and pleasure. We like your city. It is a great city so far as the future is concerned. It has wonderful opportunities. You have things we need, and we have things you need. The intervening country has things we both want.

"For getting all these things, co-operation between your Commercial club and our Chamber of Commerce would be a great help. The Clark road has been a great thing. It has tied us together, and we want to work together now.

"For instance, in matters of legislation Sait Lake could help us to things we want, and in which Sait Lake otherwise would not be interested. We could do the same by you. A plan whereby both commercial bodies would work as one in such things would be of vast benefit."

'In ten years Sait Lake will be a place of 200,000, And the country between will be greatly built up and producing many things. Los Angeles and Sait Lake have too many common interests to enumerate. They can do much to help one another. We want your Utah gold and silver. You want our oranges and eaa waves. We can exchange nicely, can't we?

"Now to get the best results for both it seems to me a good plan to have the two commercial bodies work, in cases of mutani interest, as one. They can do much for Sait Lake and for Los Angeles, and for the intervening country.

"Los Angeles people not only like Sait Lake, but they will come here in great numbers. Your climate is wonderful. Why, I never slept in my life as I did last night. Of course, ours is the best climate on earth, but one likes a change of allitude. As a matter of course, we will be coming here for the summer—some of us building summer residences. And every one knows you will be coming to us for the winter. We are one in many ways."

Sounds Like Good Plan.

Said E. A. Widmer: "I have never had suggested to me this plan of the two commercial bodies working together for mutual interest. It is new to me and I like to think over things before I make up my mind on them. But it sounds like a good plan. Sail Lake is a beautiful city with a big growth ahead of her, and the country between here and Los Angeles will develop greatly."

It would give opportunity for discussing and solving such questions as might arise from time to time. I heartily favor this or some similar move having the same ultimate object in view. Socially there will be a great intermingling between the people of the two cities. There can be no doubt about that. The new road has brought about a cordial feeling and produced a spirit that makes the Angels want to visit the City of the Saints.

Harry J. Lelande, city clerk of Los Angeles: "It was the Board of Commerce that made Los Angeles; it is the Commercial club that is helping to build up Salt Lake and I can't see why a joint organization of this character, which has done so much for the two cities individually could not do more for them united. Organizations of this character are splendid. They get to the roots of matter and enable one to proceed along certain definite lines. Good services on the new line will also be a factor. It saves time. The people of the two cities have already become friends and I am certain that the Angels will frequently loosen up their purse strings and make little summer trips to your splendid mountains."

Pull Together, Says Treasurer Jones Pull Together, Says Treasurer Jones.

Mark G Jones, Treasurer of Les Angeles county: "Business between Los Angeles and Sait Lake should increase daily, and never stop increasing. The way to increase this business is to pull together and make the best of our opportunities. The maintenance of the spirit that exists between the two cities now is the chief essential to commerce of course problems will arise from time to time, and a joint Chamber of Commerce in my opinion, would prove cery helpful in pushing matters along smoothly and successfully. That the people of the two cities will frequently visit one another is certain. I know that Sait Lake hospitality has made a hit with me, and I shall always be glad to spend a little time here."

Favors a Joint Chamber.

Louis Blankenhorn. "Business between Sait Lake and Los Angeles is already on and before the week is over some of our California men will have demonstrated that fact in a manner to convince you. But still I believe that a conjoint Chamber of Commerce could be used to good value. Our reception in Sait Lake has been glorious, and I live in the hope that the merchants of these two cities will find their business relations of the same character."

The woman and child had just alighted from an eastbound car to go to their home, and walked behind the car, when they were struck by an incoming car. The boy was thrown fifty feet and the woman almost the same distance.

After the accident the victims were ta-ken on board and the car started for the city. The husband and father begged the city. The husband and father begged the trainmen to stop at the County hospital, as they were near that place, so that they could receive medical treatment, but no attention was paid to the request, and they were taken to the main depot, at Main and Sixth streets, where the car was run into the rear of the building and no one allowed to see the victims for an hour or more. They finally were sent to the City Receiving hospital. There was great indignation at the treatment of the victims.

The child died before the surgeons could begin an operation. The mother is suffering from concussion of the brain, internal injuries and shock. It is believed her skull is fractured at the base. The physicians say she probably will die.

'Last night's recital,' he remarked, 'presented an unusual combination of attractions. Here you had one of the world's greatest organists, playing upon the greatest and best organ in America, in a building that for excellent acoustic properties is the superior of any that I know of,'

Ade Orrill Is Pleased.

Ade Orrill Is Pleased.

Ade Orrill of the Southern California Savings bank of Los Angeles was ready to break into poetry after he, with Fred P. Wilson of the Title Guarantee and Trust company, and President Frank Humphreys of the Standard Woodenware company had made the ascent to the tower of the city and county building under escort of Police Officer Frank Brown. "The view of your city, valley and lake that I saw from this elevation," declared Mr. Orrill, "would inspire romance and imagination in a wooden Indian cigar sign. Never have I beheld anything finer."

Received Royal Treatment

Received Royal Treatment.

"And with all the enjoyment that we hourly getting from your climate pery," said Mr. Wilson, "I want scenery, said Mr Wilson. I want to add that I have traveled much, but have never before been in a town where I received such royal, generous treatment as myself and all of the boys that I know are getting right here in Salt Lake. Every citizen is willing and anxious to do all that he can to make our stay a pleasant one."

Utah Can Raise Broom Corn.

"While you're talking about climate," chipped in Frank Humphreys, "do you know that I'tah is well adapted to the raising of broomcorn? I expect to see that industry well established here within the next few years. Broomcorn forms a profitable crop for the farmer and the installation of more broom factories will give employment to a good class of skilled labor that carms good wages." Niemann Praises Tribune.

Niemann Praises Tribune.

"I didn't get to see a reporter yesterday," said F. Niemann, a large cement contractor of Los Angeles. "but I want to be quoted right now to the effect that the newspapers of Salt Lake and particularly The Tribune, are overwhelming us with attention and kindness. You have devoted more space to us than we really deserve, but we appreciate it more than we can tell. Why when I get up this morning. I found a ticket good for half a dozen issues of The Tribune in my mall, it is only a small thing in one way, but it proved your spirit of kindness and hospitality in a striking manner."

"Human Magnet" Here.

R. G. Doyle, a prominent real estate dealer, is known among his acquaintances as the "human magnet." Some say it's on account of his size, as he weighs 350 pounds, but others declare that his title is carried by his perential optimism. When he gets in the humor Doyle will show his friends how he can cure the deaf, blind and crippled by his wonderful magnetic power. That's what he says, but it's hard for him to find time to make a demonstration.

Hard Problem to Solve.

George W. Hughes of the Long Beach Board of Trade, is trying hard to find acme one who will answer the question: "How much Salt Lake beer will satisfy the thirst of an Angel, after living four years in a prohibition town?" but has not solved the problem. Bolter Likes Climate. E. D. Bolter, proprietor of the La Vista Grande hotel, Monrovia, which he terms the healthlest spot in California, says that he is almost convinced that it is impos-sible to get sick in Salt Lake's climate, but he does not want to say so out loud.

Boosting for Salt Lake. Quartered at the Knutsford are many of the most representative men of Los Angeles. And while they are having the time of their lives, one only has to stand around a little while to understand that Salt Lake is the principal topic of conversation. Last night in animated discussion with Gus Holmes over the future of this city, was William Garland, who made fame for himself by years ago predicting a population of 200,000 for Los Angeles in 1905, and he has lived to see his prediction fulfilled. 'I tell you,' said he to Holmes, 'that as much as you have worked for this city, you will be greatly surprised at its growth in the next ten years.'

Salt Lake Good Enough.

Salt Lake Good Enough.

Mr. Holmes is devoting his entire time Mr. Holmes is devoting his card and energy to the entertainment of his guests. "You must come back to Los Angeles with us," is the demand frequently made upon him, but the answer always is in effect: "You have found Sait Lake a good town; it's good enough for me. I am going to stay here and do what I can to make it go forward."
